

EXTREME

Written by Simon Dekker

A series of close ups as a young guy prepares himself for some extreme bicycling. His helmet, his gloves and his kneepads are ready and he drops down the ramp.

He does a series of tricks: spinning his bicycle mid-air, backwards flips, no-hands & no-feet. Suddenly, a trick goes wrong, and he crashes to the floor. The crowd gasps.

Freeze frame and super: Think this is extreme?

Unfreeze. The bicycle comes to life and starts to chase the dazed rider. The bicycle scoops and tosses him through the air like a rag doll.

Rushing into frame are two rodeo clowns – they distract the bicycle with their bright colours and shouts. The bicycle turns to charge one of them and the rider is helped off the ramp by the other.

Freeze frame and super: Meet the mother of extreme.

The scene dissolves into a rodeo infield. The rodeo clowns unfreeze - their on-screen position and action continues - but the bicycle is now a two-thousand-pound bull. And he's mad.

Crash edit to super: Calgary Stampede Rodeo. Real. Tough.